U.S. GNP Gain Is Largest Ever Før a Quarter

By Hobart Rowen

WASHINGTON, April 15 (WP).—The gross national product inp) the most inclusive indicator of U.S. economic performance red a record gain of $28.5 billion in the first quarter to an annual by of $1,018 billion, the Commerce Department reported today. It is the first time that the GNP—the market value of all goods and ryloss had crossed the thousand-billion (trillion) dollar rate for full quarter period. But despite the record advance, most governent officials were quick to concede that the bulk of the gain was merely a normal rebound from last year's General Motors strike.

PARIS, April 15 (AP).-Mmc, Raymond Lecompte told ner husband he could stay in the country another day. Mme, Patrice Bellanger wore a pair of hot pants, and an ice cream vendor on the Champs-Elysées ran low on vanilla.

In Munich, office workers headed for the parks at lunch time for a soak in the sun, wisteria bloomed in Rome, and Scottish ski resort owners looked at cloudless skies and complained about the lack of snow.

Most of Europe was awash in spring today with temperatures ranging in the 60s (Fahrenhelt) from the British Isles to the middle of the Continent. But the sun stopped at the Iron Curtain, Moscow looked like mld-January. Heavy, sometimes blinding, snow fell off and oo all day, melting as it touched the ground. Since Easter, the weather in Paris has been a pop-song cliche, so clear and soft that the trees on the Avenue George V seem to have gone from pale to mid-green in 72 bours.

Largely because of his meeting in Moscow with Le Duan, the first secretary of the North Vietnamese Communist party, Mr. Thuy caused a brief ripple of excitement when he appeared at the 109th session and announced he would make "concrete points to permit the conference to progress." But U.S. Ambassador David K.E. Bruce and South Vietnamese Ambassador Pham Dang Lam separately said they found "absolutely nothing new" in the North Vietnamese presentation.

Even the Hanoi press spokesman indirectly conceded that Mr. Thuy had reiterated well-known demands. They stipulated that the United States withdraw all Ita troops by June 30 or propose another "reasonable date" as a pull-

Paris Quits Stalled Oil Talks, Curbs Algeria's 'Special Ties'

'3d World' Policy Seen Affected

By Henry Giniger PARIS, April I5 (NYT) .--

France today cut off further negotiation with Algeria over their oll relations and indicated that their existing ties would be put on a atrictly-business basis. The failure of a course of action that made Algeria a key point of French policy in the Mediterranean and in the underdeveloped world was implicit in the atatement issued by the Foreign Ministry and in the note handed to the Algerians in Algiers by the ministry's secretary general Hervé Alphand. His role in the talks recently had failed to end their stalemate. The note indicated that the Algerians would get no special favors as far as French investment was concerned.

The firm French reaction followed unilateral decisions by Algeria taking over majority in-terest in the assets of French oil companies in Algeria, setting the highest posted price of any oil producer in the world, compensailing the companies at about a third of the sum that they had deemed acceptable and ending all further foreign-controlled concessions.

"The French government notes that the latest positions of the Algerian government make the pursuit of oil negotiations between the governments purposethe Poreign Ministry declared.

The government said that it was up to the Algerians to talk directly to the companies about future operations. Egypt last month, much of it so sophisticated that only Soviet crewa could man it, has not yet upset the military balance in the region. Israeli sources said yesterday. But a further hulldup could give the advantage to Egypt unless the United States agrees to sell more airplanes to Israel, these sources said.

The request to purchase mora aircraft was submitted to the United States by Israeli Premier Golda Meir during her visit to Washington last September. No U.S. decision has been made, although shipment of aircraft and other equipment committed earlier is understood to be continuing.
President Nixon and other U.S. officials repeatedly have said thot ment and further entrench itself the United States would maintain the balance of power in the region. Most recently, Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird said on What is needed; in the Israeli view, is a strong statement by the United States opposing further direct major-power involvement in the region backed by a decision to sell Israel the planes it needs. Israeli sources attribute a dual purpose to the latest Soviet buildup: to strengthen the regime of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat after he agreed to spell out a readiness to moke peace, and to convince both Israel and the United States that, in the absence of a peace agreement, the resump-tion of hostilities is not just a hypothesis, but a real possibility. Earlier this week, tha State Department, by implication, blamed the slowness of Israeli di-plomacy for the stepped-up arms shipments. Such a U.S. reaction, in the Israeli view, acts as a virtual invitation to Moscow to see how far it can go, In this view, the opening for a Soviet move already was made when U.S. officials characterized tha Egyptian willingness to sign a peace treaty as a tremendous concession.

Unresolved Problems

As White House press secretary Ron Ziegler noted, the presidential decisions announced yesterday do not concern the unresolved problems of resuming diplomatic relations, nor the U.S. dilemma about how to handle future U.S. policy on the seating of China in the United Nations.

These problems remain on the President's desk, still unresolved. But they too are bound to he affected by the manner in which China responds to the latest U.S. initiatives. China, for its part, is unlikely in any event to indicate any specific response until it sees exactly what trade the United States will authorize. Many academic specialists have warned that China is most likely to soub any U.S. trads relaxation that provides it with second-class treatment in comparison to U.S.-Soviet trade regulations.

Drive to Protect High. Drive to Protect Highlands SAIGON, April 15 (UPI).-

South Vietnamese forces supported by U.S. planes and artillery today opened a new drive to break tha Communist threat to the Central Highlands.

battle two miles southeast of Firebase 6 Military sources at the front said about 2,700 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong were slain in 15 days of combat in the Firebase 6 area. South Vietnamese losses were placed at 172 men killed and

The lifting of the siege appeared to give Sonth. Vietnamese forces the initiative in the area. Officers at Firebase 6 said three South Vietnamese battalions were aton the hill by late yesterday and that five more battalions were sweeping the slopes, with more troops landing nearby. . .

In Cambodia, the high command reported that the North Vietnamese ended a three-day hill with sharp attacks yesterday on several government positions south and east of the provincial capital terday said they cannot yet say whether China will achieve trade parity with the Soviet Union, noting as an advance qualifica-tion that with China and the Soviet Union in different stages of development, what the United States considers "strategic" items for one might not be the same for the other. This is one of the major issues to be argued out inside the government, Administration cources drew special attention to one item in the President's announcement that they regard as far more significant than it appears on the surface. This is the promise "to expedite visas for visitors or groups of visitors from the People's Republic of China to the United States."

Resolves Internal U.S. Debate sensitivities, and is known to have been the subject of considerable opposition from the Justice Department. Under existing law, "waivers" are required for visitors to the United States from Communist nations. Chinese visitors abroad almost invariably travel in groups, even more than other Communist visitors, and any Chinese trade groups, advocates argued, would balk doubly at usual U.S. travel

Whatever their fate, the new departures in U.S. policy are many steps beyond what all previous administrations, and President Nixon himself in his earlier roles in government, ever advocated. The era of "isolating" China is clearly ending, for the United States is recognizing that it can no longer be sustained.

He said it was absurd and inconceivable that the administration would have FBI agents keep surveillance on events such as those to which Sen. Muskie referred. The Maine senator, frontrunning contender for the 1972 Democratic presidential nomina-headlines could leave the impression the FBI or the administration was motivated to keep private citizens under surveillance. He said such an impression was totally mislcading and simply not true Sen. Muskie said the FBI had agents reporting on between 40 and 60 Earth Day rallies last year, including one he addressed in Washington. Mr. Ziegler said if PBI agents attended any of the rallies, it was to keep watch on violent known criminals, and not to spy on the rally itself. Emphasizing It was not govern-

NEW YORK; April 15 (AP),-New York State sued the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel for $452,811 yesterday, elaiming the famous hostelry had illegally added 2 percent to room hills for "sundries."

The civil lawsuit in State Supreme Court quoted one complainant, the president of a New York City bank, as saying the Waldorf told him that the "sundries" charge was to cover the possibility of his receiving telephone calls on his room phone or messages at the desk.

The hotel, in a statement, said it would "vigorously resist the unreasonable civil lawsuit." Attorney General Louis J. Lefkowitz asked the court to enjoin the hotel from making what he called hidden charges and to force lt to repay guests $113,202.83, plus $339,608.49 in triple damages. Mr. Lefkowitz said that the state had filed the action based on the bills of 64,338 guests who stayed at the Waldorf hetween December, 1969, and May, 1970, when his office entered the case.

Only a handful of businesses stayed open, chiefly banks, hotels and airline offices. The strike, which merchants will repeat on April 28 on a nationwide scale, was called to show disapproval of a tax reform that merchants say will add 13 percent to many bills—and drive away customers. Finance Min-Luigi Preti said the taxan added value tax-would merely replace an existing one that is even higher in some cases. Businessmen's associations said thet the strike closed most of Rome's 46,000 shops and stores. 21,000 foodshops, 10,300 bars and restaurants and 600 wholesale companies.

The strike was the most serious several called after unions ended an Easter truce. Possibly more disruptive, however, was the nationwide 24-hour mail and telephone strike.

The country's largest union, the Communist-led General Confederation of Italian Labor, voted to continue the mail strike in Rome for 48 hours more.

Most of the 153,000 postal, telegraph and telephone employees returned to work today hot refused to do any overtime or piece work, which accounts for 70 percent of all postal activities.

Other strikes either were under way or ordered for the next few days, including those by railway employees, hotel workers and some teachers. Their motives range from demands for higher pay and a 40-hour work week to pressure on the government for quick action in housing reform

Speed Noted In Far Space

Objects Go 10 Times Faster Than Light

By Walter Sullivan BOSTON, April 15 (NYT) .--Radio astronomers have observed in distant space what appear to be two objects flying spart at 10 times the speed of light. Because the laws of physics say that such a velocity is impossible, it is suspected that the ohservation is in some way mis-leading. Nevertheless, it was described here yesterday hy three teams of astronomers who have independently detected or confirmed the phenomenon.

While they were unable to agree on a plausible explanation, they were virtually unanimous that this celestial observation was one of the most challenging of recent years.

The objects seem to be two ents of a quasar known as 3C-379. Quasars are objects that look like stars but show evidence of being extremely distant. They are also powerful emitters of radio waves.

3 Billion Years

In long-exposure photographs taken through the most powerful telescopes, 3C-279 is dimly visible as a single point of light and is generally helieved to be so distant that its light has taken three billion years to reach the earth.

If quasars such as this one are indeed so distant they must be generating extraordinary amounts of energy to produce radio and light waves intense enough to be observable at that range. The estimate of the speed at which the two components of 3C-279 are flying apart assumes they are, in fact, that distant.

The discovery was reported and debated here at a symposium at the American Academy of Arts and Sciences on the use of antennas thousands of miles apart to determine the angular width and precise direction of distant radio sources. The technique is known as long baseline interferometry.

After the symposium, the Rumford Premium, America's oldest scientific prize, was given to 21 scientists from American and Canadian observatories who ploneered in development of the

Rhodesia's Smith Rejects Britain's 'Five Principles'

SALISBURY: Rhodesia, Apiril 15 (Renters).—Prime Minister I'an Smith was reported today to have dismissed as "no longer of any consequence" the five principles Britain has laid down 26 conditions for settlement of the Rhodesia independence dead-

In an interview with the Rhodesia Herald, the prime minister said: "I have never thought the five principles were of much nce. I do not believe they are in fact principles."

Mr. Smith reaffirmed that in any further negotiations with the British he was prepared to consider amendments to the Rhodesian Constitution—but on the strict condition that any changes must be in Rhodesia's interests.

Britain and Rhodesia are corresponding about the possibility of a resumption of negotiations to end the dispute set off hy Rhodesia's unilateral declaration of independence in 1965,

Previous negotiations have collapsed partly over the Smith government's refusal to accept the five principles laid down by the British—including insistence on an end to racial discrimination and guarantees of unimpeded progress to African rule in

Menuhin's Son May Lose His U.S. Citizenship

By Anthony Lewis
LONDON, April 15 (NYT).—
Gerard Menuhin, second son of Yehudi Menuhin, the violinist, was born in Edinburgh because his parents were there for the music festival. That happenstance may soon cost him his American cirizenship.

A Supreme Court decision on April 5 took Gerard by surprise, along with an unknown number of others who thought they were

By a vote of 5 to 4, the court upheld the constitutionality of a law limiting the citizenship rights of anyone who has only one American parent and is born abroad. To remain American, such a person must reside in the United States for five years between the ages of 14 and 28.

Gerard lived in Los Gatos Calif., for most of his first seven years. But since then he has traveled about with his parents. And he now has a job here as a film editor. That poses his di-

His younger brother Jeremy, 19, has spect less time in the United States. But he happened to be born there. Thus his cttizenship is unaffected.

Using Your Head on Intelligence

Central Intelligence Agency, told the nation's newspaper editors that "we propose to adapt intelligence work to American society, not vice versa." he was expressing a goal that is much in the mind of America today. The difficulty is that it is hard to find agreement on how this is to be done.

The CIA has not been prominent in the news lately, which is to the credit of Mr. Helms's conduct of the agency since he took command there in 1966. Army Intelligence, and the Federal Bureau of Investigation, have both usurped the spotlight because of their activities in domestic surveillance, while the CIA's overseas operations have not been linked lately to any Bay of Pigs. But it le etill possible for a foreign observer to charge the CIA with any development that annoys him in his own country; the conspiratorial aura etill invests this hody.

The charges are, in almost every ease, false on their faces. But Mr. Helms's defense against assertione that the CIA is "an invisible government," that it is "engaged in provocative covert activities repugnant to a democratic society and subject to no controls," reveals that the CIA shares a problem with other American agenciee operating in this general field.

This problem is primarily the eecrecy inherent in such operations. Mr. Helms admits the dilemma-which ie one affecting the FBI as well-and aske that the nation "to a degree take it on faith that we too are honorable men and devoted to her service." This, however, ie precisely what the nation is not in a mood to do; it is not even satisfied to assume that "the elected

When Richard Heims, director of the officials of the United Statee government watch over extensively intensively and continuously" the works and words of either the CIA or FBI_

This is partly due to the dilution of responsibility for intelligence, domestic and foreign, which resolts in part from the nature of their work and in part from the way in which events have chaped their growth. And it stems in very large measure from the fact that the administration, the target of so much criticism-and radical violence-plays too preponderant a role in the governance of investigatory bodles.

Sen. Muskie-outraged by FBI surveillance over Earth Day rallies-makes the very seneible proposal that a domestic intelligence review board be created composed of prominent membere of government intelligence agencies, Congress, the judiclary and the bar to eupervise activities in thie field. Tom Wicker, of The New York Times, would have President Nixon go further, and create a commission to study the whole federal police and intelligence problem: the amount of political surveillance that may be neceseary, the means and technology appropriate to the task, and the safegoards that should be available.

Measures such as these would help, and they might be extended in some specific form to the CIA. But the great reliancs against abuse of power, especially in the domestic field, should continue to be the courts. These are what really distinguish the American police systems from those of Nazi Germany or Communist Russia. These are still the ultimate safeguard of American

An Opening Door

A historic change for the better is taking place in relations between the United States and the Chinese People's Republic. What an increduloue world saw Wednesday was, in effect, the announcement by Chou En-lal and Richard M. Nixon of a major step toward normalization of Chinese-American relations, ae both countries open their doors to each other's citizens while laying the groundwork for resumption of trade and, probably, for subsequent economic and technical cooperation.

The Chinese have been most obliging in their timing: Premier Chou's words about "a new page in the relations of the Chinese and American peoples" come just as the spring push has begun for marches on Washington by critics of Mr. Nixon'e policy. Premier Chou has done Mr. Nixon a good

The Chinese are now playing traditional balance-of-power politics more boldly than they have in recent years. It is likely that during most of the last decads Mao Tse-tung and his associates honestly believed they were endangered by an informal Soviet-American alliance such as Peking's propaganda denounced so often. Mao's nightmare must have been the thought of a coordinated Soviet-American attack on China, with the Russians moving in from the north across the Siberian and Mongolian borders while U.S forces took off from Vietnam and Taiwan. The steady departure of American troops from Vietnam may have allayed those fears and strengthened the Chinese in the belief that they have only to gain from more normal relations with Washington.

Beyond the political factors, China is now emerging from the confusion of the Cultural Revolution, and—as Chou En-lai emphasized to Edgar Snow-is significantly improving its economic situation. But China's industry is etill far and away the smallest of any of the major world powers. Substantial American economic and technical aid for the future expansion of Chinese industrial capabilities—aid similar to the aid this country provided the Soviet Union during the 20s and early 30s-would be of enormous value for Peking.

Such perspectives are still distant, and there are many pitfalls—the issue of Taiwan and the question of Peking's place in the United Nations Security Council among others-on the road leading toward a full Peking-Washington rapprochement. Nevertheless, events have moved eo swiftly this month and there has been so much goodwill expressed by the leaders of both nations that no question on the Chinese-American ngenda can be regarded any longer as totally insoluble. The essence of the matter is that renewed contact and cooperation between the United States and the Chinese People's Republic is very much in their mutual in-

International Opinion

More Than Table Tennis

For Peking, what is involved is not a table-tennis match but the subtle prelude to a diplomatic and psychological offensive aimed at both American poblic opinion and U.S. and Japanese business circles, andindirectly but surely-at the U.S.S.R. Moscow records all this with sharp disappointment. This is not displeasing to Mao, who, incidentally, has by no means ceased his propaganda against the American government.

But Mr. Nixon tolerates this. Hs knows that Peking demands the withdrawai of American troops from Indochina and the end of U.S. support of the Chiang Kai-shek regime in Taiwan as a precondition for restoration of diplomatic relations with Washington. The President said on his arrival in the White House in January, 1969, that he wanted to improve relations with China. The Chinese have just answered him. A great Peking-Washington match has just begun; it might totally transform the international situation one day.

-From France-Soir (Paris).

Where American politicians and businessmen failed, a group of sportsmen of minor world reputation socceeded. And this is certainly not a result of particular Chinese inclination toward ping-pong. Like everything else in Chinese policies, this was a sudden, unexpected and well-premeditated move. By inviting American sportsmen, and not businessmen or politicians, the Chinese never sacrificed any of their proclaimed principles or the policy of disagreement and opposition to American imperialism in the Far East. At the same time they demonstrated a great degree of goodwill toward the American people-which was never Peking's ping-pong gambit seems to have awakened expectations here and there which can hardly be fulfilled. There are two obstacles to rapid progress in normalization of relations between the United States and China: the Southeast Asian conflict, and the problem of Taiwan. The latter issue has bilateral as well as UN aspects. No American President could simply toss overboard the alliance with Taiwan: Nixon will certainly never do so.

The question is whether Peking would in ths long run be prepered to somehow live with it, without in principle giving up ite claims. As to the bilateral relations between Washington and Peking, until a UN solntion is found the tremendous existing obstacles will have to be attacked in small doses, with a reduction of trade barriers being coneldered as the next step. At any rate, normalization will not proceed very rapidly. One ping-pong tournament does not make

Uncle Sam Looks South

By C. L. Sulzberger

-Any South American tour forces certain conclusions that are best reported immediately, even from another continent. The first conclusion is that there hes been a major change in relations with North America. The Monroe Doctrine's inherent philosophy that developed into an effort to exclude foreign powers from a market where the U.S.A. sought outlets for its capital surplus is now wholly outdated. One wry joke heard in Latin lands is: "The Alliance for Progress must be succeeding; ws are getting a better class of dic-

Juscelino Kubitschek, the former Brazilian president, says: "Kennedy, made a profound psychological error in creating the alliance. He should have consulted Latin nations but, in effect, he told them: 'I will do this.' Johnson forgot Latin Americaexcept the Dominican Republic. Nixon won't even hear of it. No popular feeling exists here that the U.S. really wants to help this continent."

The wisest course would be for Washington, which insures them, to urge U.S. companies to try whenever possible to enter into joint South American enterprises with such friendly nations as West Germany, Italy or Japan and also to accede whenever the host country wishes a majority share of the enterprise. TORANNESBURG, South Africa. in Brezil trouble will come if the above rule is ignored. We have learned two other lessons: That the United States cannot rely on Letin America as a market for its military equipment or as e mirror for its ideoiogy. The southern countries have turned increasingly to other weapon sources because we kept offering inadequate materiel. Now the size of our military missions steadily shrinks.

Our dominance is far from absolute in our own backyard and even the possibility of intervention has almost if not entirely vanished. We can only influence events and often but minor events. Moreover, few ideological regimes south of the Rlo Grande are of the sort we fully admire. The Latin nature doesn't easily lend itself to Anglo-Saxon political prejudices.

The Ghetto Mentality

True democrats like Kubitschek in Brazil or Frei in Chile are disappointed with our philosophical posture. Kubitschek savs:
"The U.S. should really lead the democratic world, supporting all who fight for democratic institutions. It should give ideological and moral leadership, not material leadership. A successfulcampaign for democracy cuts into both right and left and could help Latin America break out of the extremist alternatives which, otherwise, may fall eventually on the side of Communism."

Traditional U.S. efforts to control South American mineral wealth and dominate industry cannot swiftly he erased, and the tendency of many U.S. communities to live in self-chosen gbettoes of comfort amid their Latin fellows has heightened the jealousy felt by poor for rich. Moreover, counter-terrorist campaigns conducted by rightist governments rub off on the U.S.A. which is seen as condoning reactions for the sake of stabilizing its investment security. The first step, in the interests of everyone concerned, is to energize the moribund NATO consultation committee on Latin America and heip our allies raise their profile while the United States lowers its own, It is obvious what the basic long-range problems are:

One-to use every means of encouraging the southern continent to open up its largely unexploited interior; two-to discourage reliance on single products; three-to persuade and edocate on the need for population control; four-to case outside assistance for the massive cities that have spring up like cancerous mushrooms and sock in a rural population that dinds even miserable elums superior to the outback. The hinterland it-self must be improved.

Piero Sanavio From Rome:

> The (Italian) Republican party is the smallest and noisiest (which often means the most authoritative) member of the four-party center-left coalition. It represents less than 3 percent of the electorate . . .

ROME-Early in March, the Italian Republican party pulled out of the government The move seemed at first the prelude to a major political crists: the center-left coalition that includes Christian Democrats, Socialists, Social Democrats and Republicans had long been on the sick list. It still is.

No political crisis, however, rocked this country, which a few days later received with indiffer-ence even the news of Prince Valerio Borghese's foiled coup d'état. With the confidence of a cheesy TV announcer, or an improbable cheer leader, PRI chief Ugo Le Malfa hastened to reassure public opinion by declaring to friendly newspaper editors: "We move out of the government but not out of the coalition. On the contrary, we firmly believe that the center-left formula is still the only one that's possible in Italy." He added then that his party would continue to support the government even if it no longer belonged to it.

This last declaration was at first interpreted by observers here as evidence that the Republican party is not ready to forsake the advantages it draws from its participation in the political club that runs, the country. "La. Malfa," they said, "is like those investors who want to cash in high dividends without ever taking any risk." Others maintained that La Malfa's pledge of support to a government whose responsibilities he no longer wanted to share was instead a political move. "By casting himself in the image of the man above party interests, who's only mindful of the welfare of the state, he has started his elec-toral campaign." One of the Rspublican boss's greatest ambitions seems to be to become the next president of Italy. His two presumed rivals, Aldo Moro and Amintore Fanfani, both Christian Democrats, are trying to reach that goal by flirting with the left... As he withdraw his party from the government; La Malfa explained that the principal reason for his disingoggio (disengagement) was his deep disagreement with the way economic and social reforms are approached and carried out by his political part ners. "Reforms are either serious" ly planned." he said, "or are bound to be ineffective. We cannot have." serious reforms as long at we do not plan properly the way of putting them into effect."

Instead of clearing the aliquis these words complicated the issue and the Republican withdrawa was interpreted in new and road of the foreign ways. Some Socialists afraid that the move might resign to a sliding of the government for wider participation. This was further emphasized by felling the socialist leader Gine Hertoldi who felling in an interview declared that the significant residence of the secondary and the Republican withdraw "center-left formula no longer reflects the realities of the country. There are, now, three great popular parties in Italy the Christian Democratic party, Soclaist party and the Community party. A parliamentary dialogue among these three forces reflects a situation that, at the regional level and among unions, is also ready at work. ready at work"

By Tom Wicker

WASHINGTON-When a man bites a dog, that's news: but when a front-running presidential candidate bites J. Edgar Hoover, that's big news. So the most important thing about Sen. Edmund Muskie's charges against the FBI may be that the fabled Director at last has lost the special immunity from criticism that for so long characterized him, Mother and the Fleg.

kie charges are a substantial addition to the worst period of controversy Hoover has encountered in his 47-year career. Muskie went beyond criticism, however, and made a valuable proposal that President Nixon might do well to adopt end shape to his own and the country's best interests. The Maine senator suggested a domestic intelligence review board, responsible to Congress and the President, composed of both public and government members, end charged with making yearly public reports on the scope of and need for domestic political surveillance.

Good enough, but if Nixon would take this idea a step further, he might seize Muskie's initiative for himself, and et the same time act to calm the sudden eterm thet has blown np around Hoover, the FBI and the whole subject of government spying on

The President could appoint just such a responsible board as Muskie suggested, but give it a much broader initial missionthet of surveying the whole field of federal police work, making recommendations as to what, if any, forms of political surveillance might be needed, who should be carrying it out, under what supervision and restrictions, and for what specific uses.

This would be a badly needed study by concerned citizens of the extent to which, in modern times, a democratie government may be justified in collecting and storing information on the private lives and political activities of its own citizens, and of the ways in which such information might be legitimately used. And it would be a particularly timely study for at least the following

Era of Turmoil

For the foreseeable foture, the nation is likely to be caught in the kind of social and political turmoil it has seen for the last few years, with activist anti-government elements in conflict with a powerful bureaucracy backed by moderate-to-conservative public opinion. In such a period, political survelllance is bound to be attempted and denounced, often beyond rational limits At the same time technology is vastly extending the possibilities for the determined spy; the computer-operated data bank, linked with those of other state and federal agencies, is one example. Legal restrictions and ethical guidelines for the use of these tools are vitally needed, and already overdue. Moreover, with the American Bar Association recommending that the states permit wiretapping, and the Justice Department pushing in the courts its doctrine that it has the right to eavesdrop without a warrant on persons and groups - it suspects of subversive activities, some sober reflection and weighing of results in the bugging-tapping field might prove most useful. Finally, it is obvious that Hoover cannot for many more years (as Harry Truman no doubt said to Tom Clark) continue to serve as Director of the FBI. His impending departure offers a splendid opportunity to review the role and record of the bureau andits one and only chief, in a responsible effort to determine what improvements might be Maybe there should not be another Director with the independent power of J. Edgar Hoover, Maybe the FBI ought to be organized differently, its jurisdiction expanded or limited, its actions made more accountable. Perhaps the bedrock minimumif there is one-of surveillance required might be handled in more equitable or even more effective fashion.

This field of government activity, after all, has grown with great rapidity in response to events, and most of it has been entrusted, with little question or dispute, to J. Edgar Hoover. There is ample reason for Nixon to pick a responsible group to study the results, see where we may be headed, and recommend needed changes. It would certainly be easier and probably more useful than firing Hoover or backing him blindly.

They all went for classic, conser-Arrestive clothes with very few shorts and no gimmicks. There was a indite return of the coat and dress ensemble and the honest-toiped satin vests. Paris Ballet: Politics and Performances

By David Stevens

PARIS, April 15.—The ballet troupe of the Paris Opera came out into the open during the first half of April, giving not only a kind of interim report on its artistic health but reminding the public that the trench warfare over the future of the Opera and Opera-Comlque is still far from over.

Before the first of two programs at the Theatre des Champs-Elysees, the dancers gathered on the stage in street clothes as one of them told the sudience that the dancers of the two French national lyric theaters had been given notice as of later this year. Similor notice has also been given the musical personnel, including singers, orchestra and chorus.

Both the notice given by the theaters and the public protests by the dancers and unions representing the artists were just the latest shots in the extended battle over new labor contracts with artistic personnel - those with technical personnel at the theaters having been signed.

On the other hand, Cultural Affairs Minister Jacques Duhamel has just named Raymond Franchettl. a former leading dancer and teacher et the Opéra, to bead the ballet troupe, charging him with developing a plan under which the dancers will have an autonomy within the theaters more or less comparable to that enjoyed by Maurice Bejart and his Ballet of the 20th Century at the Belgian National Opera. Mr. Duhamel, while making It clear that sgreement on new working conditions is essential to the reopening of the Opera this fall after a season of being closed, also spoke ambitiously of restoring the Opera to a position of eminence in the traditional repertory and of making the Opéra-Comique primarily a center for contemporary works and of advanced lyric training. This means finding permanent re-placements for such key figures as conductor Georges Prêtre and ballet director Roland Petit, both of whom resigned their posts as music and dance directors of the Opéra hefore they really began. Yet, all being well, there could be an interesting transi-reportedly with Berlioz's "Benvenuto Cellini." and a real new start in 1972, for which Strauss's "Die Frou Ohne Schatten" with Karl Böhm as conductor has been penciled in.

Agoinst this confused background, it would not be fair to expect much more from the ballet company than a holding operation. The 13 ballets on the programs at the Champs-Elvades made very little use of the corps de ballet, and much of the sharpness that the company had developed under the one-year direction of John Taras has clearly dissipated since his departure last fall.

On the first program, only Peter Van Dyk's poetically elegant choreography for Schubert's Unfinished Symphony, beautifully danced by Jacqueline Rayet and Michael Denard, provided a moment of relief from tired routine. The more rewarding second program was dominated by two Balanchine works-"Apolion Musagète" (Stravinsky), with too clear.

tions! season beginning this fall, Jean-Pierre Bonnefous reappearing here after a salutary tour of duty with the New York City Ballet, and "The Four Temperaments" (Hindemith), which gave a larger number of the roung leading dancers a chance to show that the company's raw material is good enough to justify Mr. Duhamel's ambitions.

Meanwhile, the young and enterprising Ballet-Theatre Contemporain of Amiens, appearing the Theatre de la Ville through the end of this week, is not putting its best foot forward at all in a tedious ballet "collectively" concocted by Michel Descombey and four young choreographers to Karlheinz Stockhausen's "Hymnen." The dancers in costumes based on various national flags, are moved around in a vacue dialogue with Stockbausen's musical college of national anthems. The whole business drones on for more than an hour during which the absence of a creative focal point is all

On the Arts Agenda.

Sofia will give nine performances of four operas from May 3 to 14 at the Théatre des Champs-Elysées in Paris. The works on the program are Mussorgsky's "Boris Godunov" and "Khovanshchina." Puccini's "Turandot," and "Moustchil." by the contemporary Bulgarian composer Lubomir Pipkov. The company is also appearing at Rouen and at the Wiesbaden May Festival

The Zagreb Blenngle festival of contemporary music is scheduled this year from May 8 to 20, with more than 30 concerts and performances in the program. Among the visiting groups and artists are the Ballet of the 30th Century of Brussels, the Deutsche Oper of Berlin with Schoenberg's "Moses and Asron," the Netherlands Dance Theater, pianist Maurizio Pollini and soprano Dorothy Dorow. The final concert will be a Berg, Fortner, Stravinsky program by the Berlin Philharmonic under Herbert von Karajan.

The spring concerts of the Or-

The Bulgarian State Opera of chestre de Paris begin April 28 and 29 with Erich Leinsdorf conducting and soprano Monserrat Caballe as soloist in a Richard Strauss-Beethoven program, La-ter concerts will be conducted by Josef Krips (May 12), Plerre Der vaux (May 26), Claudio Abbado with Vladimir Ashkenaxy as piano soloist (June 9) and Herbert von Karajan, who conducts the orchestra and the Vienna Singverein in the Verdi Requiem

> Five French or world first performances are on the program of the final concert of the Domaine Musical April 26 at the Theatre de la Ville in Paris. The Ensemble für Neue Musik of Cologne under Mauricio Kagel and the Domaine Musical under Jean-Chande Casadesus will perform Morton Feldman's "Between Categories." Leni Alexander's "A Quoi, Par Quoi, Pour Quoi," Gérard Masson's "Ouest II" and Kagel's "Unter Strom" and "Tactil."

> Johann Strauss's "Gypsy Baron" will get a new production at the Frankfurt Opera April 22 in a staging by Helmut Matiasek, sets by Ekkehard Grübler. and choreography by Ray Berrs. Gabor Otvös will conduct and the principal parts will be sung by Anny Schlemm and Josef Hopferwieser.

> Gounod's rarely performed "Le Médecin Malgré Lui," based on the Molière play, is being produced this month by the Volksoper in Vienna with staging and designs by Jean-Pierre Ponnelle and conducted by Jean Perisson. Performances are scheduled for April 18, 22, 25 and 28.

Margot Fonteyn and Noëlls Pontois will be Rudolf Nureyev's partners in "The Sleeping Beauty" at the Palais des Sports in Paris from May 12 to 28, with the bal-let and orchestra of the Marseilles Opera, with Jacques Bazire as conductor and under Rosella Hightower's choreographic supervision. Mains Gielgud, of the Ballet of the 20th Century, will join Nureyev in performances of the same production May 1-4 at the Teatro Liceo in Barcelona.

The project is financed by General Motors Corp.'s Delco Electronics Division which has developed a "phystester" that could be used to prevent drunk drivers from starting their cars. The device, which was unveiled in May, 1970, has a score-board that displays a random four-to-seven-digit number for a couple of seconds. The motorist then must punch the same number on a keyboard within three or four seconds to prove he's sober enough to drive. If he can't, his car won't start.

The medical college has tested about 40 people to date, incinding medical students and

NEW YORK, April 15.—Here's how The New York Times critics rated new movies:

"Shinbone Alley," directed by John D. Wilson, based on the 1857 Broadway show of the same title and "archy and mehitabel" stories by the late Don Marquis, has its "ups and downs," com-ments Vincent Canby, but "unlike the generous, ever optimistic mehitabel, I got my regrets." One thing about the movie "must be unforgivable, at least to Marquis fans," in his opinion-"the pbysical transformation of its heroine into a sleek, apparently sexy, cartoon pussycat, an unhappy feline scrt of mix-up between Auntle Mame and Dolly Levi ... Paradoxically, this cleaned up, chic mehicabel is at odds most of the time with Joe Darion's screenplay." Carol Channing provides the voice of mehitabel and Eddie Bracken is the philosophical cockroach archy.

"Right On," directed by Herberi Danska, written by a group which calls itself The Original concert, a poetry recitation with bongo accompaniment incantation of black soul, presented as cinema-of-the-rooftops," Vincent Canby reports. Shot mostly on a brownstone rooftop, three poets (Gylan Kain, David Nelson and Felipe Luciano) perform works of their own composition. "Each of the three poets is an extraordinarily effective screen presence, and I especially like several of Mr. Kain's works," Canby

"The Mephisto Waltz," directed by Paul Wendkos, screenplay by Ben Maddow, based on the novel by Fred Mustard Stewart, elicited "terrible" from Howard Thompson: "Shift 'Rosemary's Baby' to California. with the nice young couple abruptly exposed to some chic, jet-set zombies, including the world's greatest planist. His directorial fingerprints are everywhere. What could be more Tati-esque than the sight of the pompous officials solemnly measuring the floor of the exhibit hall or of the worried inventor perilously changing a tire on a high-way as vehicles whiz by or of his entanglement in the vines of a villa he has scaled, his coins and keys slipping from his pockets? But let his bilarious devices take you by surprise. It is sufficient mendation to announce that Tati is again in town.

The recent efforts of several movie mummers, established as farceurs, to now pass themselves off as neo-John Gilberts and upto-date Valentinos have heen quite as funny as their comic performances. We have had Elliott Gould as a raiser of feminine blood preasure in "Getting Straight." We have had Richard Benjamin in "Goodbye, Columbus" and we have had Dustin Hoffman as a Greenwich Village Anatol. What is more, these gentiemen what is more, these gentlemen have ubligingly exposed themselves in an approximation of the altogether while making love, suggesting, however, less mad passion in the moonlight than the shower room of a circus. The successful romantic actor must convey a romantic personality. If he has good looks and easy charm he needs little else, and if he hasn't these qualities, those that he may have are of no use. Alain Delon, though scarcely a Salvini, is one of the screen's best romantic actors. He has taken of late to producing his own films and he has come up with some duds. His new actormanager opus, "Doucement les Basses"-in which he is reunited with his ex-wife, Nathalle, as his co-star—is foolish comedy about a young man who, believing his wife deceased, becomes a priest and then discovers that she is alive after all. Despite the screenplay's inadequacies, there is some fun to the roughtumble interludes and Delon's performance as a romantic leading man deserves a better movie.

Japanese Earn $2 Billion More Than They Paid Out

TOETO, April 15 (AP-DJ), Japanese earnings from abroad, outpaced spending by a record $2 billion in the year ended March 31, the Finance Ministry estimated today. The overall surplus in its balance of paymenta in the talest fiscal year compares with a $1.99 billion surplus a year ago.

Officials attributed the performance to a record trade amplies in the latest year—44.53 billion, up from $3.73 billion ne previous year.

Gold and foreign exchange reserves soured to $5.46 billion, the ministry estimated, and are likely to reach $6 billion by the end of this month. Reserves totaled $3.92 billion at the end of April, 1970.

"The ministry estimated that Japan had a long-term capital author of $1.35 billion in fiscal 1970, compared with a $642 million outflow the previous year.

The March payments surplus rose to a record $530 million from a revised surplus of $389 million in February and the mevious record of $400 million in December last year.

There was little surprise in the GNP numbers reported today. They were about in line with the recent expectations of private analysts, but, as Mr. Shultz implied, well above some earlier projections, notably a forecast for a $22 billion gain hy former Johnson administration economist Ofto Eckstein.

Distortions caused by the auto strike make valid comparisons somewhat difficult. But Mr. Passer, explaining in January the $991 billion 4th quarter 1970 rate (revised downward today to $990 billion) had asserted that without the strike, "the annual rate... would have been in the neighborhood of $1,005 billion."

Latest Month March Gain Almost

Double of February's

WASHINGTON, April 15 (AP-DJ: U.S. Personal income rose $5.9 billion in March to an $836.3billion seasonally - adjusted annual rate, the Commerce Department said today.

Last month's rise was olmost double the upward-revised $3 hlllion advance registered in February, but trailed the $9.9 blltion rise in January. The March Increase was the fifth consecutive monthly gain.

For the first quarter, personal income was at an $831.4-billion annual rate, up Iron: $813.3-billion in the fourth quarter and $782.3-billion a year earlier.

Although the March increase almost doubled the February risc. still fell below the monthly gains necessary for the Nixou administration to reach its projection for personal income this year, officials said.

Wage and salary disbursements rose $3.3 billion in March, exceeding the $2 billion rise a month carlier. With employment remaining almost unchanged the payroll gain was attributed to increases in hours worked and in hourly carnings. All major industry divislons shared in the rise.

Manufacturing payrolls advanced $500 million in March, after declining $400 mlllion a month earlier. A longer work week and a higher bourly earnings rate more than offset a steep drop in factory employment,

The increases were obout equally divided between durable and non-durable goods, with most mdustries abowing small gains.

She has the audso-ity to contrive her fiction from the point of view of a male. Gilles, successful Parislan ladies' man and journalist, seeks to rid himself of a depression through a visit to the Limousin countryside. He meets "the Queen of Limoges society." He discovers that he never really wanted Nathalie that much to begin with.
Or, rather, that he is startled by how much he needs her. "My God, Gilles," Nathalie exclaims, "how self-cen-tered you are." She believes he has encountered her sexually only to bully her and possess her, and that she has been obliged to respond out of tenderness, by falling in love, But Sagan writes: Much later, he was to remember that it was the idea of her goodness which had allowed him to make love to her that first time. And he, who had never glimpsed anything remotely erotic in the finer feelings, for whom the phrase "she's a slut" would, if anything, have been vaguely exciting, would later, much later, too late in fact, prick up his ears when he heard someone casually described as "a good woman:" But now he looked at her and smiled, and apologized, not without a hint of selfsatisfaction for having been so brutal . . ."

The Taxing Case of The Scilly Islands

AMBILLINGALIAN IN ALIAN IN ALI

By Richard Reston

HUGH TOWN, Scilly Isles-In 1306 the five main isles of Scilly rented for 80 cents a year.

If the money was too much, the islands could be had for 300 puffins, those odd-looking sea parmts of the auk family. With such bargain prices in mind it is no wonder that the British people Scilly are in revolt these days.

This scattering of islands and rocks 28 miles off the southwest tip of England boasts a splendid tradition of rebellion against

In 1648 the Scillonians rebelled against the British Parliament. The issue in those days was a royalist challenge to Parliament over the right to plunder ships regardless of nationality.

In more contemporary times, the islanders kicked up quite a fuss when London imposed the income tax in 1954. Now the issue is automobiles and the people of Scilly are at it again.

Car Tax

London insists that the Scillonians pay a car tax or licensing fee to bring them in line with people on the mainland. A large part of the population of 2,000, including some of the leading citizens, are refusing to pay.

To ease London's bureaucratic conscience, the government is demanding that islanders pay over £25 a year for private cars and considerably more for a few commercial vehicles. Recent protest meetings condemned the tax as ridiculous and unjust, "Some of these island cars aren't even worth £25," said one person in this village capital.

There are only 350 vehicles on the islands, mostly in Saint Mary's, the largest isle, where the real battle is taking place. The islands claim a total of 11 miles of paved road and in some areas that is a flattering description.

The last major road repair took place in the late 1940s. As many of the Scilly rebels point out, London really is demanding a full mainland car tax for the use of one mile of paved road inside the village of Hugh Town. The remainder of the countryside roads, for the most part dirt tracks, belong to the Duchy of Cornwall,

Private Roads

This means that all the rural roads are considered private, belonging generally to Queen Elizabeth II, specifically to her son and heir. Prince Charles.

Hugh Town is not part of the royal estate. It was sold by the duchy to village tenants in 1949 and thus comes under the direct authority of the island government council.

The protest over auto taxes on these islands is not so different from the protest in so many other larger and more important places in the Western world. The people of Scilly believe that the government in London is too big, too remote and too cynical about the special needs of a tiny community such as this.

Barnsley Ward, a leading flower grower on Saint Mary's and head of the protest community, puts it this way: "The government has had no negotiations with the people of the island. Some civil servant simply wanted to line us up just right." Mr. Ward claims the island council is negotiating a £200,000 grant from the government to bring the roads up to mainland. standards. He suggests that the council does not want to jeopardize its chances by supporting the revolt over vehicle tax. But we don't want to pay the tax and we don't want the £200,000 to finance dual-lane motorways across an island three miles wide," he says.

"The government is trying to pour a quart jar into a pint pot we'll split at the seams."

The town clerk thinks they will all pay up eventually but admits that the going is slow thus far. His position as a noncar owner is that it is ridiculous to bring a car onto the islands. For the moment there seems to be a private agreement between the population and the two policemen. Many of the people do not pay and the police do not prosecute. Mr. Ward and Mr. Rogers think the day of prosecution is near and that a test case may be the best thing.

Untidy, Administratively

Asked how all this came about, the clerk said: "The Ministry of Transport centralized the vehicle tax system in 1969 and put everybody into a computer. We were administratively untidy and so we were brought intn the net."

He says he does not go out much these days because things get a bit personal on the islands, especially when people blame the council for issues like the license fee.

Meanwhile, the rebels say they will continue to refuse to pay a vehicle tax which will boost the cost of living to an unfair level. Estimates put the cost of living in Scilly at 25 percent more than on the mainland.

"That seems quite a lot when you think that all we have to drive on are a few goat tracks," said a local pub manager. Are the leaders of the Scilly revolt encouraged?

"Not really," Mr. Ward says. "If it comes to a showdown between the queen and the government, the queen will back down." Mr. Rogers feels the government is being "nasty," all for one mile of paved road and a few additional thousands of pounds in annual vehicle taxes. "We've asked the duchy to help, but what can you do nowadays?" he says. Another islander agrees: "It's like Big Brother on a little island."

Judge Luigi Velletri set the divorce hearing between actress Gina Lollobrigida and Yugoslavborn publisher Milke Skeffe for May 18 after a meeting with the couple Wednesday in Latina, Italy. The couple decided that their son Milke ir., 14, would remain with his mother. He had been in the custody of the actress since the couple parted in 1961. Latina court pronounced their legal separation in 1966. Skofic said he was glad Miss Lollobrigida could finally get a divorce. "It was absurd that Gina could not have a new family if she wanted one," Skofic said. "T have another one abroad now and I am happy." He remarried in Scotland in 1968 after obtaining a divorce in Austria. Divorce was legalized in Italy in December.

In Norwich, barmaid Julie . Wood, 18, wants her midi skirt back. It disappeared Wednesday on the back of a car when it became caught in the anto's bumper as she crossed a street. It left her standing on the street in tights, and panties. Her purple midi coat did not go, too. "I just picked up my coat from the road, wrapped it round me and ran," she said.
